Darwinian Voodoo presents the Apex Predator; its alpha collection exhibited in Europe and West Asia and now coming to the USA. The work is complimented by the brands digital flagship store Darwinian Voodoo.com.

Apex Predator features male and female ceremonial attire that are customised in human hair, bones and eyes and accompanied with footwear, perfume and accessories that are laden with thousands of teeth for the discerning client with the taste for power and exclusivity.

About the artists:

Mariana Fantich (Ukraine) and Dominic Young (UK) are East London based artists that started collaborating together in 2008 and have since then been known as Fantich & Young. Their work entails a conceptual approach to the manipulation and juxtaposition of symbolic ready-made materials.

In their latest work Darwinian Voodoo Fantich & Young create art that subverts Darwin's theory of evolution and natural selection with the belief system of supernatural ceremonial ritual. The concepts of nature and super-nature are explored in the work.

Apex Predator showcased Fantich & Young's ability to effectively merge the creative disciplines of fine art, design and fashion. Apex Predator has been exhibited in The Grassi Museum, The Villa Rot Museum, Museum Hundertwasser, Victoria & Albert Museum, The Mall Galleries, Somerset House, 360 Mall Kuwait, Spielzeug Welten Museum, Stadtgalerie Klagenfurt, Khalidiyah Mall Abu Dhabi, Lentos Art Museum, Moscow Museum of Modern Art, Liljevalchs Art Museum, Lagoona Mall Doha Qatar.
